ABSTRACT

A remote DC plant monitoring system is provided that includes graphical user interface logic and connection logic. The graphical user interface logic provides a user with periodically updated data points associated with a DC plant. The connection logic connects to a monitoring server and receives the periodically updated data points associated with the DC plant, the monitoring server being coupled to a number of DC plants via a network. Methods and other systems are also provided.